An innovation in urban living and quality of life

Positioned on the site of a former gravel and loam quarry that had lain neglected and derelict for over 30 years in the Borough of Bexley, The Quarry, Erith, is an innovative new development for a wide range of residents - blending quality contemporary design and contoured landscaping with outstanding indoor and outdoor living space.

A joint venture between L&Q and the Anderson Group, The Quarry masterplan creates a beacon for sustainable urban living. Creating a vibrant, thriving new community within extensive ecologically landscaped grounds, the 20 hectare site will ultimately offer 849 eco-friendly homes of various tenures including Shared Ownership, as well as a state-of-the-art three form-entry primary school.

The contemporary houses and apartment blocks have been designed with a distinct architectural appearance. Taking aesthetic influence from the history of the site, façades feature natural materials and tones, enhanced by architectural detailing, to complement the surrounding vistas.

A view from the past and vision for the future

Homes at The Quarry have been designed with its heritage in mind. A key source of gravel and loam, Erith Quarry has been of fundamental importance to the local community for almost 200 years. The site helped to increase employment opportunities for local people across two centuries, after triggering the industrialisation of Erith at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

One of the core materials produced at the site was ballast – in the early 19th century, ballast materials, including rocks and sand, were put into the cargo holds of ships to prevent them from capsizing. At Erith Quarry, this important matter was loaded into and transported via a four-foot gauge railway to the wharf, which lies on the south bank of the Thames, where numerous ships would benefit from Erith's ballast. It was the production of this that gave rise to the industrialisation of Erith, enabling them to keep pace with the rest of the country during the Industrial Revolution of the 1800s.

Following the turn of the 19th century, the site held onto its important status in the local community as it was heavily relied upon by the nearby armaments' foundry to provide building materials for the manufacturing on guns and ammunition for the First World War. In the 1970s, Erith Quarry was then 'backfilled' - its former owners considered the land too difficult to redevelop due to the unique topography in comparison to the surrounding borough, leaving the site derelict for over 30 years. Responding to this complex topography and history of the site is key to the design concept for The Quarry.

Designed to take advantage of the steeply sloped landscape, creating a distinct yet coherent architectural aesthetic, the network of streets at The Quarry fit into the contours of the land and gently climb the hill in a series of terraced platforms.

A sustainable community and a space to grow

Creating a vibrant, thriving new community within extensive landscaped grounds, the conservation of the rich flora and fauna of the site has remained a priority for the joint venture partners.

Whilst the entire site is protected, some areas have more ecological merit than others, which led to the creation of an 8 acre ecology area that incorporates retained areas of native grasslands and woodland, as well as new wet pond features.

This ecology area will eventually be accessible to the public via a raised viewing walkway, offering a look at the unique ecosystem established on the site.

Anderson and L&Q have safeguarded the natural habitats of newts, snakes and other reptiles, along with a wide variety of bird species, ensuring they are successfully protected and emboldened. In addition to this, over 800 trees are set to be planted in and around the ecology area and more than 200 bird boxes are to be installed. A central park will also open, running the entire length of the site from north to south.

There's no place like home. Especially when home means spacious rooms, a beautiful modern kitchen and your own outdoor space.

● Future Phases

Beautifully designed and space for living

The Quarry offers a wide range of different homes to suit a variety of buyers and budgets. Across multiple phases, L&Q and Anderson have launched apartments, maisonettes and houses, some with Shared Ownership, helping many first time buyers get onto the housing ladder.

All homes at The Quarry offer generous living spaces and benefit from large floor-to-ceiling windows that have been designed to maximise views and natural light.

Homes boast private outdoor space in the form of gardens, balconies and terraces. Giving each home its own character, the contemporary kitchens have been individually designed, and feature fully integrated appliances which include an oven, induction hob, integrated extractor, fridge freezer, dishwasher and washer/dryer.

Homes continue to adopt sustainable design measures, including an energy-efficient building fabric combining thick insulation to the floors, walls and roofs. Double or triple glazed windows, low energy lighting and efficient heating and ventilation systems.

At The Quarry we do not use gas, all our homes have their heating and hot water supplied by an ASHP (Air Source Heat Pump).

Alongside the ASHP, all houses adopt another low carbon renewable technology in the form of PV (photovoltaic) panels on the roof. PV uses cells containing semi-conducting material to capture the sun's energy and convert solar radiation into electricity. The generated electricity is directed back into the properties and automatically used before drawing on additional power billed by the chosen energy supplier.

Homes are also equipped with a 7kw electric car charging point or the infrastructure to install one with ease.

A well connected neighbourhood and a community full of life

Erith has been many things in the past. It was the place where Henry VIII built his dockyards and warship. It was the must-go destination for Victorians on holiday from London and it was a hotspot for industrial development.

With the Elizabeth Line in nearby Abbey Wood, Erith will continue to become more and more popular. So to get ready for its next chapter, a 10 year regeneration programme is now underway.

One of the first projects has already been finished – the Old Carnegie Library building reopened in 2019 as The Exchange and is now home to arts and exhibition space, The Book Store Cafe and hosts a range of live entertainment and independent markets.

New schools

and a bright future

Designed to be both bold and contemporary, the main school building has been built as a three-storey circular ring, maximising natural daylight and ventilation. Featuring a central playground within the circular structure, different year groups will have allocated outdoor space for break times, split across a multi-level outside area.

places

3,800m²

Classrooms will face out over the development and beyond, aiming to motivate pupils and boost their concentration, as well as promote their health and wellbeing, whilst hallways will face inward, overlooking the central playground inside the building. Built with timber, concrete, and glass, the school has been purposefully designed to blend in with the ecological parkland and woodland that surrounds The Quarry.

When complete, the school will provide education facilities for 630 children. Equipping students with vital skills, the school will be home to an all-weather sports pitch, Forest School, and an allotment, as well as a separate nursery for pre-school aged children, and a breakfast and afterschool club. These facilities are equally matched inside, with a music and drama studio, and classrooms dedicated to a range of subjects, including science, design technology, and art. Incorporating the latest technology, the school is an Apple Accredited School, fitted with innovative equipment to support modern day learning.

Within the school, rooms have been built for SEN students who may receive one to one support, as well as additional breakout rooms to promote independent and group learning.

The school is run by The Woodland Academy Trust, who thrive to provide high quality learning experiences for students at their 5 schools, while highlighting the importance of nurturing strong partnerships within the community. Reflecting this community centric focus, the school is perfectly placed to serve residents, opening to its first intake of reception-age children in 2023 (Subject to build progress and permissions).
